Investigating the Indian Bureau.

CHICAGO, Jan 19—The Times' Washington special says the Indian committee yesterday began the investigation of the letting of contracts by the Indian Bureau for the transportation of Indian supplies. Commodore Kountze appeared before the committee and gave testimony of a severe character against the Indian Bureau management. He gave many instances where he had contracted for the privilege of carrying supplies up the Missouri river. In all cases where he had been a bidder he was below the other bidders, yet the contracts were invariably given to others. The evidence is regarded as a good basis for further argument in favor of turning over the management of Indian affairs to the army. The sub-committee that has this special subject in charge have sent letters to officers of the army, of experience, asking their opinion of the contemplated change. It is not probable there will be any report on the subject under six weeks as the sub-committee will make the most thorough study of the subject.

Report on the Alaska Fur Seal Contract.

WASHINGTON, Jan 19—The report of J J Moore on the Alaska fur seal contract goes to the House to-day. Moore gives a statement of the Russian contract, also the history of the fur seal contract, from the commencement. The books of the Alaska Commercial Company and the treaty have been examined and the number of seal skins brought from the island and passed through the San Francisco custom house compared with the shipping books of the company and the account of sales from Lampson & Co of London. This thorough examination, according to Moore's report, entirely frees the company of any charges of killing a greater number of seals than the contract warrants. Moore found that the contract is very lucrative to the contractors, and he ridicules the charge of their cheating. He also found opposition to the company in San Francisco on the ground that the act of 1870 leasing the islands, was wrong. This report differs from others which were sent to Congress on this subject, inasmuch as it chiefly deals with investigating the number of seals killed and the skins sold and the working of the contract from the beginning.

Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan 19—Sherman presented the [illegible] of citizens of Ohio asking Congress to aid [illegible] the construction of the Southern Pacific railway; referred.

Wallace presented the petition of citizens of Allegheny county, Pennsylvania, formerly soldiers in the Union army, asking the passage of a law giving additional bounty to soldiers; referred.

Booth presented the petition of John A. Sutter asking to be allowed a certain amount of public land or its equivalent in money as compensation for lands which he alleges he has been unjustly deprived of; referred.

After the expiration of the morning hour Morton moved to lay aside the unfinished business which was the resolution of Davis to appoint a special committee to investigate the books and accounts of the Treasury Department, and take up the resolution submitted by him before the holiday recess to inquire into the circumstances attending the recent election in Mississippi; rejected—yeas 22, nays 31.

The Senate then resumed the consideration of the resolution submitted by Davis and Sherman spoke in favor of appointing the committee asked for.

On motion of Sherman the resolution of Davis was laid aside informally and the Senate took up the resolution of Morton with regard to the Mississippi election. Morton then spoke at length.

Sherman called up the Senate bill to amend the act of June 20 1874 amending the charter of the Freedman's Savings and Trust Company and for other purposes.

Several amendments proposed by the committee on finance were agreed to and the bill passed.

Sherman said the committee on finance had considered the expediency of the government purchasing the Freedman's Bank building, but thought it best not to put an amendment for that purpose on this bill. That question could be considered by the Senate hereafter. In his judgment the government should purchase the building.

SPEECH OF SENATOR MORTON.

Mr President: If the information I have received from very many sources is substantially true the late election in Mississippi was an armed revolution characterized by fraud, murder and violence in almost every form. It was carried in some respects under the forms of law, but its real nature was that of force, violation and trampling under foot of the dearest rights of great masses of men little less sudden than those revolutions which have distinguished the States of Mexico and the countries of South America. It did not differ from them in character and was equal to them in atrocity. It is a matter of the gravest import to the American people to know whether a large majority of the people of the State have been overthrown and subjected by a minority and also to understand upon what pretense or principle such result has been brought about. The only thing like principle that should be assumed in justification of such a result would be that the political and civil power should belong exclusively to the white race or upon the other principle that the party the members of which own the most property in the State should be allowed to govern to the exclusion of the majority who are generally poor and most of whom have nothing to depend upon for their sustenance but their labor. I apprehend that an investigation of the Mississippi revolution would show that the triumphant minority acted upon both these principles and in various ways boldly professed them as its doctrine. He reviewed the treatment which the Republicans received in the south before the war and declared that it is a question whether it is not the policy of the Democratic party of the south not only to defeat the Republican party of the South but to extinguish it by social and business ostracism and personal violence to the whites who favor that party and one present to the colored man the alternative of starvation or the support of the Democratic party. He claimed that the better and larger class of Democrats were opposed to this social violence but were controlled and intimidated by a smaller and violent element. Their party's infamous lies about negro plots to murder white people have become stale and disgusting. If apprehensions of uprisings ever existed they grew out of continued intolerable wrongs inflicted upon the colored people and are another proof of the truth of that saying "Conscience doth make cowards of us all." Every year before the war, stories of plots among slaves to rise and murder their masters and families prevailed which, I believe in every instance turned out false, but which were often made the pretext for the greatest cruelties. A conclusive answer to these foul calumnies is found in the fact that colored men only are killed. If white men are killed they are few in numbers and the cases are exceptionable.

Morton declared it was the duty of the Republican party to maintain the rights of colored men and said should the Republican party of the North become indifferent to the fate of the colored people South and ignore the atrocities committed upon them, nothing can prevent them from sinking rapidly into a state of vassalage. Their last condition will be worse than the first. That the Democratic party of the South are reconciled to the civil and political equality of the colored people, is contradicted by their every action, by their daily life, their history in the past and their aspiration in the future. When they get the physical power regardless of constitutional provisions or congressional enactments they will hurl them from the platform of equality and reduce them to vassalage, one step removed from slavery. He referred to the white line policy adopted by the Democracy of the South and affirmed it was established by the Democratic party immediately after the termination of the war and has never been relaxed. The white line policy was the legitimate descendant of the black code of 1865 and the revolution of 1875 was but a continuation of the fight against the principles of reconstruction and of the constitutional amendments. Whatever disguises may be temporarily adopted, whatever protests may be made in Washington, the inflexible purpose of the white line democracy of the south is the destruction of the political rights of the negro. He went on to cite the reports of committees sent to investigate the outrages and said the Hon. Geo F. Hoar, chairman of the congressional investigating committee in his report made to the House last winter briefly recapitulated the history of the murders and atrocities in Alabama and presents a sickening detail of horrors that dwarf into insignificance any Indian war that has occurred within this century. The horrid massacre in the Mechanics' Institute at Colfax at Coushatta, to say nothing of those of lesser magnitude, relieve those at Wyoming and Schenectady of their historic prominence and throw over the butcheries of the Modocs a mellow light. The evidence taken by the reconstruction committee of the House, of which Boutwell was chairman, in regard to the election in Mississippi in 1868, presents the bloody and fraudulent archtype of the election last fall. It reeks with murder, frauds, proscription and intimidation. It shows that the new constitution of that year was rejected by the same infamous instrumentalities, by which the revolution last fall was conducted. The record shows that the white line Democracy of Mississippi, who now would have the country believe they have been patient and long forbearing but finally aroused to uncontrollable anger by the oppressions and robberies of a Republican State Government in 1868 hoisted the same bloody flag bearing like inscriptions under which they marched to victory won by the same weapons. The pretense that they had borne with Republican robberies and oppressions, until forbearance was no longer possible, had resorted to intimidation and violence only when no other remedy was left is a falsehood, the monstrosity of which is only equalled by its presumption upon the ignorance or forgetfulness of the nation. I shall show hereafter that all real grounds of complaint, which they had against the Republican State Government in Mississippi were trivial, almost contemptible when compared with the wickedness and enormities which distinguished the Government of that state while in the hands of the Democracy before the war.

Morton referred to the atrocities committed by the Ku Klux, and said the passage of the enforcement act and the prosecutions under it had had the effect to break up the Ku Klux organization throughout the South and gave comparative peace and security in several Southern States for two or three years. The suspension of the writ of habeas corpus by the President in certain counties in South Carolina had a magical influence. Many of the most desperate men in that and other States immediately ran away, some of whom had but recently returned. The white liners of that State yielding to the only principles they recognize, force and fear, suspended their operations and have only recovered their courage since the revolution in Mississippi which they are now declaring it is their purpose to repeat and make the basis of their action in 1876. It seems never to have occurred to those who attempt to justify these wrongs, or the score of Republican misgovernment in the South that the proscriptions and violence that have been practiced there are in themselves calculated to beget corruption and disorders in a government. [illegible] are persecuted not for their crimes but their opinions. [illegible] outcasts from society and the [illegible] enjoyments of life, they have but little [illegible] temptation; fraud and corruption [illegible]. It is a lesson of history in every age that where men are treated [illegible] oppression [illegible] society [illegible] [illegible] amnesty question [illegible] [illegible] We stand in the [illegible] [illegible] the policy is [illegible] civil rights. With this policy [illegible] It is believed the Democracy [illegible] every Southern State and [illegible] considerable extent in the Northern States. State after state has been conquered from the majority by violence and we are no longer left to doubt as to the purpose. It is to establish a solid South in the interest of the Democratic party and when they have obtained control of the National government to reconstruct the Southern States upon the white man's basis and destroy the Republican party by making it impossible for men of Republican principles to live there and express their opinions as in peace and safety. Then, as before the rebellion the Republican party will be banished from the South and it will be to them as a foreign country. When we consider how fearfully rapid progress has been in that direction even under a Republican administration we can understand how it might be accelerated and consummated with a Democratic President elected chiefly by the southern democracy, and necessarily sympathizing with them in their aspirations. Let it be said I do injustice to the Northern Democracy? I beg leave to remind the Senate that before the war the Northern democracy not only connived at oppressions upon the Republican party and its exclusion from Southern States but made merry over and defended outrages committed in the south upon abolitionists and that now the Democratic party either deny, justify or excuse the dreadful atrocities committed upon the white and black Republicans in the Southern States. A necessary concomitant of the system of murder, violence and proscription in the Southern States are falsehood and perjury. Men who commit these crimes will commit perjury to conceal or justify them. A monstrous system of falsehood has been continually practiced, not only in Mississippi but in every Southern state by which the government of the United States is charged with the grossest and most wicked oppression of the southern people. Republican state and county governments are assailed with charges of corruption and oppression which in most cases, are utterly false and grossly exaggerated. Many very ignorant people of the South are thus made to believe that they are sorely oppressed by the government of the United States, that it is as charged by a distinguished Mississippian now a member of Congress the most tyrannic government on the face of the earth and yet if they were called upon to specify in what they have suffered they could not do it even if their lives depended on it. The charges of corruption against Governor Ames and every Republican State and county official in Mississippi have been so voluble and persistent that very many of the ignorant have been made to believe them and have thus to some extent, been hounded on to madness and crime. Many well meaning people deplore and refer to the outrages committed in the South as inimical to reconstruction and harmony between the sections. They are exceedingly anxious that in this Centennial year all past differences shall be forgotten and the people, North and South forgetting and forgiving, and mindful only of our great national future shall meet and embrace as a nation of brothers, "a consummation devoutly to be wished." But I must remind such well meaning people that any formal reconciliation whilst the dearest rights of millions are systematically violated and the greatest wrongs unnoticed and unpunished will be the rankest hypocrisy, revolting alike to divine and human justice. All gushing and hand shaking which precludes concession of equal rights and justice to men of all colors and opinions in the Southern States will be the veriest sham and deceive nobody. Such foul wrongs cannot be ignored and concealed. They will forever obtrude themselves upon the world and cry aloud for redress. There will be a cry of "peace! peace!" when there is no peace. And sound Republicans of the North turn a deaf ear to the complaints of the Republicans of the South and affect to believe that reconstruction had taken place, and that all is well. They will be justly contemptible in the eyes of mankind.

Before concluding Morton yielded the floor and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After a short time the doors reopened and the Senate adjourned.

House

Blaine offered a resolution calling for information on the transfer of the lands within railroad limits allowed to Union soldiers, adopted.

The Speaker then called on committees for reports.

Springer introduced a constitutional amendment providing that Congress shall not pass any special or local laws in regard to granting pensions, bounties, lands or prize money or for correcting the records of any department in relation thereto, granting relief to any person or authorizing the payment of any claim, giving to any corporation, association or individual, a right to lay railroad tracks or conferring any special or exclusive privilege on such corporation, regulating the prize courts or conferring special jurisdiction on them in a particular case; that in all cases, where a general law can be made applicable no special law will be enacted and that the courts may determine whether or any special law could be embraced in a general enactment; referred.

The House then went into committee of the whole on the state of union, Wood in the chair, on the Centennial appropriation bill and was addressed by Phillips of Kansas in advocacy of the bill.

Harris suggested that the House, by its vote on Holman's resolution on the 14th of December had committed itself against all subsidies. He recalled the fact that when that resolution was offered Hoar had asked whether it would not cut off the Centennial appropriation and that Holman distinctly stated he did not consider the word subsidy in that resolution as covering the Centennial appropriation; the House therefore had voted for that resolution with a reservation in favor of the Centennial, not a mental reservation but an outspoken reservation.

Alluding to the proud bird which is the emblem of this country with its spread eagleism, he said: We are told that though this country is rich and prosperous the people shall not be taxed 5 cents each for the celebration of the country's birthday. He hoped the bill would pass and that the country's birthday he hoped the bill would pass and that his Southern friends would not allow this opportunity to pass without proving to the North they had as much pride in the Fourth of July as any Northern man.

Atkins of Tennessee asked Harrison whether he meant those gentlemen who opposed the bill were disloyal to the government.

Harrison—Not by any means.

Atkins—I hope not. I hope no such test will be made. We have heard enough of that.

Harrison—I did not fight myself but have read history sufficiently to know that brave men who fought are always first to join hands across the bloody chasm.

Atkins—I am willing to join hands across the bloody chasm, but am not willing to vote for this bill.

Cochrane spoke in opposition to the measure as unconstitutional, said he had pledged his word to his constituents in Pittsburg that he would vote against every subsidy, and this was a subsidy; he should therefore vote against the bill. When he went home to his people he would be able to look them in the eye and say "I kept the pledge which I made to you when I was elected." [Applause on the floors and in the galleries.]

Kelley spoke in answer to Cochrane and supported the bill.

Regan of Texas spoke in favor of the bill and gave as one of the controlling motives of his own mind this reason: A great and protracted civil war with the long controversy which led to it and a system of reconstruction measures just as disastrous as war have so wrenched and distorted the Constitution and have so obscured and perverted the principles of civil liberty and just government as to make a serious and earnest recurrence to the principles of the declaration of independence, of the constitution and of the spirit and genius of the government a paramount necessity.

Frye supported the measure.

Tucker opposed the bill. It was perfectly clear what his duty was. This was not an exhibition of material principles. In his views there were [illegible] principles that underlie the declaration of independence. The principle of individual liberty in local government in a struggle against centralized power, and principle of the exemption of American destiny from the controlling influence of European politics. He would unite in celebrating the centennial anniversary in these three principles to let himself [illegible] that the liberty of citizens was secure against arbitrary power, that freedom and independence, what Chief Justice Chase termed the autonomy of State was safe against arbitrary usurpation of Federal power, that American destiny was to be guided alone by its own policy and be free from interference of European policy. Then there would be indeed a Centennial.

Tucker then proceeded to argue against the constitutionality of the pending measure and [illegible] that such sum could not be levied and declared the word "national" was not in the constitution.

Hoar and Lawrence opposed this view. The latter said the thought of national unity was in the minds of the men who made the constitution.

Tucker—The men did not make it. No one [illegible] made it; the federal convention did not make it. If the gentleman wishes to know who made it I will say with great emphasis the States made it. [Sensation.] In the further course of his remarks speaking of George Washington he remarked that George Washington was the first great rebel in the country and he ventured to say the gentleman from Ohio (Garfield) who spoke the other day about perjury, that George Washington was in view of the law a perjured rebel, for he was an officer in His Majesty's army and he (Tucker) took it for granted that he swore to support the crown and then went into rebellion.

Garfield—Did he hold a commission in the British army at the time of the revolution?

Tucker—No sir.

Garfield—It ceased when his commission expired.

Tucker—But he resigned.

Garfield—He [illegible] resign.

Tucker—He did resign.

Garfield—He was not an officer at the time.

Tucker—Why the gentleman does not know the history of his own country. [Laughter.]

Garfield—[illegible] right to take [illegible]

Tucker—Oh, no; that is another thing.

Garfield—He was trying to get service [illegible]

Tucker—He resigned and then took service in the [illegible]. When the gentleman was speaking [illegible] the South the other day I [illegible] those who resigned and afterwards took service on the Confederate side.

Garfield—I did not speak of those who having resigned took service but I spoke of those who being still under oath contemptuously violated it and struck against the United States.

Tucker—If you had so qualified your phraseology I should not have interrupted you the other day for I know of no such person. The reason why I interrupted the gentleman the other day was that I represent on this floor a district and a little town where sleep the remains of one of the noblest Americans who ever trod this soil (meaning Robt E Lee). He sleeps in death and no dishonor can ever by implication or expression be thrown on that honorable grave that I represent from that district will not rise [illegible] and repel. [Sensation and some applause.] Proceeding with his argument Tucker denied the statement of Hewitt yesterday that the government was confessedly an educator of the country. The government could not intrude on the common school system of States and upturn it according to the views of members of Congress. [illegible] my Democratic friends to remember [illegible] this country has no mission but to execute its constitutional laws and perform its duty under subjection to the supreme law of the land—the constitution of the country. Show me the power to pass this bill or that its passage is essential to carry out a power conferred. I will vote for it; otherwise before God and my country I cannot. I only limit it to the growing corruption of the country as a limitation in the powers of the government. I believe that the mission of the government at this time is economy, retrenchment and reform. We have reached a time when it becomes us to put brakes down to call a halt on lavish expenditures. If the tax is only a cent to carry out an unconstitutional scheme. One scheme begets another. He was in his heart of hearts in favor of the centennial appropriation. He had no objection to showing the progress which the United States had made under the impulse of free institutions, art or science, in manufactures, agriculture, commerce, mining, in all industrial pursuits, though his State lagged behind for reasons he would only advert to. Referring to the fact that the legislature of Virginia had declined to make an appropriation for the Centennial he explained that one reason for it was a provision in the State constitution framed in 1867 and forced down their throats preventing the State from making any appropriation for anything except to pay her debts and carry on the government, but he said Virginia will be there, her people, who are able to go, will be there. She has given six daughters to the Union (referring to States made out of her territory) and ceded by her who will be there; another of her daughters will be there, (referring to West Virginia,) taken from her by the Cæsarian operation, but old Virginia rent in twain, impoverished, in her weeds of widowhood, with a heart breathing sighs for the prosperity of the common country will be there in spirit and when the government is restored to its pristine purity, when the principles of the revolution are re-established and liberty is proclaimed throughout the land to every man under the palladium of habeas corpus, unrepealable by edict of the President or by act of Congress on account of constructive rebellion, then shall the time come when we shall unite with Massachusetts in that splendid close of Webster's great speech 40 years ago: "Institutional liberty under constitutional Union, yes liberty and Union one and inseparable, now and forever."

Without taking action on the bill the committee rose and the House adjourned.

TOBOGGIN PARTIES

[N. Y. Times.]

Perhaps it is decided to make up a sliding party and a clear, cold, moonlight night is as desirable for that as for snow shoeing. For those living within reach of it the favorite place for toboggin parties is the "Cove fields." These fields spread westward from the citadel and offer a long, magnificent slope than which nothing could be better. The only disadvantage is that the hills are very long as you go up, but this is more than counter-balanced by the attractions they offer in the downward passage.

Perhaps many of my readers have seen a toboggin, but for those who have not I will describe one. It is five or six feet long and 18 or 20 inches wide, made of a thin birch board—perhaps half an inch thick—strengthened by little crossbars and turned up at the front in a graceful curve. Of course, as they have no runners, they are made very smooth and on this account an old worn toboggin is better than a new one.

Now imagine yourself on top of the longest slope of the Cove fields with the gray old citadel and the heavy walls and empty trenches just behind you and the ghostly poplars standing out weirdly in the moonlight, and all manner of historical associations around you; but you'll hardly stop to think of anything but the business on hand as you seat yourself on the toboggin, and with your feet under the curved front and your clothes carefully tucked under you, for it won't do to let anything drag—while your pilot jumps upon the toboggin back of you after giving it a start. With one foot dragging behind like the rudder to a boat he steadies your craft. After the first start you might as well be flying as far as motion goes. You rush and bound onward and downward in your mad career, a shower of dry snow rising in your wake. The ropes which you hold serve to steady you and you clutch them with the grip of desperation as you skim along, setting your teeth and bracing yourself against any stray bump you come to. A bump can be better imagined than described and consists of a hollow in the snow which an able toboggin scorns to take any account of, but the rider cannot pass it by as indifferently.

There are various degrees of expertness in the management of a toboggin and it is very easy to detect the man from the States or from England. They vary their exercise by taking up the hill and just as they are about to get on their toboggin the lively piece of wood flies from under them and takes off to the foot of the hill where it awaits its owner coming and there is nothing left for him to do but run down and come puffing up again and try it over. Some very skillful pilots stand on their toboggins guiding them entirely by the ropes. And I don't know of a prettier or more picturesque sight than to see a rosy girl stand erect and flitting swiftly but silently as [illegible] down the long hill.

A mass meeting to consider the subject of annexing a part of Washington Territory to Oregon was held at Walla Walla last Saturday. A good many people up there seem to be in favor of the movement.

Disorderly Conduct at a Funeral.

A remarkable case was tried in Justice Joachimsen's court yesterday. Saturday, Jan 1st, Hans Munsen, a Scandinavian died. During the next day, his brother Alvor Munsen, engaged James McGinn an undertaker, to superintend the funeral stipulating he should call at the house early Monday morning to prepare the body for burial, and that the hearse and carriages should be ready to leave the door punctually at one o'clock. McGinn failed to attend to the business as agreed upon and about half past two Munsen engaged another undertaker who came to the house with the hearse and carriages. McGinn meantime appeared with a cortege. He was told his services were not required. He swore his rival should not bury the body, drove to the Odd Fellows cemetery where the grave had been prepared and finding the superintendent absent asked the latter's wife to show him the permit for the burial which he put in his pocket. On the arrival of the funeral party when they attempted to place the body in the grave, McGinn forbade them, with oaths, to bury it without the permit, saying if they did, he would dig it out again. The party returned to the house with the body, McGinn drove ahead and shook the permit at them and taunted them with foul language. The body was finally buried on Tuesday, a certified copy of the permit having been obtained. McGinn, at the trial admitted the facts, but claimed he was not responsible, having no authority to prevent the funeral. The judge held the defense legally tenable, and said he was compelled, with regret, to grant a non suit.

J. G. Fair Appointed Superintendent of Ophir.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 19—At the annual meeting of the California Mining Company, held this afternoon, the old officers and directors were re-elected.

The Stock Exchange newspaper of to-day reports that J G Fair was this morning appointed superintendent of Ophir, vice Sam Curtis, resigned. There seems to be some doubt about the correctness of the report, as it was denied at the office of the Ophir company, and also by William Sharon personally, but there are reasons for believing there is some foundation for it.

H. C. Kibbe Defaulted and Fled.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan 19.—Henry C Kibbe, secretary of Belcher, New York, Sunderland, Quicksilver, Jackson and Lady Washington mining companies has absconded. He is a defaulter to the amount of over $60,000. He has been secretary of Belcher over nine years, and had an excellent reputation for integrity and fidelity. Saturday last Col Fry, president of the Belcher and New York companies learned that Kibbe was leading a fast life and cohabiting with somewhat notorious women of the town. Kibbe has a wife and three children, one of whom is in Paris with her mother. Fry remonstrated with Kibbe, who partly admitted the fact and promised better fashions. On Monday afternoon Fry, for the first time learned that Kibbe had appropriated the assessment money of the New York Co to a large amount. Kibbe had, that morning, recommended another assessment to defray the expenses of the new hoisting works. On Tuesday morning, Fry demanded an explanation when Kibbe acknowledged his crime, admitting a greater defalcation than at first supposed and said he had got in a tight place and had used about $8,000, which he would refund from his own means. Since that time he has not been seen. It was ascertained that Mr Apple, superintendent of the New York Co had advanced him $8,000, knowing his situation but hoping to get him out. On Tuesday afternoon a further examination revealed the fact that he was a defaulter to the New York Co of about $50,000 and about $9,000 to the Jackson Co. The Belcher funds were intact, and only a few hundred dollars were missing from the Lady Washington accounts.

Statement of Temple & Workman Bank nearly Ready.

LOS ANGELES, Jan 19—As much progress is being made in preparing the statement of affairs of the bank of Temple & Workman as is possible, under the circumstances. Experienced accountants are busily at work and in a few days a statement of its condition will undoubtedly be made public. We understand from Mr Spence that it is the purpose of the assignees just as soon as its affairs are investigated to call together the creditors of the bank in a body in order to consult with them as to the most practicable measures to be taken. The creditors will thus, have a voice as to the methods to be adopted to protect their interests. Rumor has it that propositions looking to the advancing of a large sum of money to pay depositors, will be presented at this meeting. The funds of the city treasurer are found to be intact save the deposit in this bank.

IMMIGRATION STATISTICS.

The arrivals and departures of passengers at San Francisco during the year 1875 is shown by the following table from the S. F. Bulletin of a recent date:

	By Sea		Overland

December	1,785	1,307	4,722	1,911
Totals	33,826	12,752	74,869	60,422

The arrivals for the past year were more numerous than for any previous year in the history of the city. Of course, those by railroad came from the Atlantic States. Of those by sea 9,500 were brought from New York by the Panama steamers. China and Japan sent us nearly 18,400, and withdrew 6,600. Of the remainder, British Columbia sent us upwards of 1,000, Australia and Mexico each over 600 and the Hawaiian Islands nearly 500. The following table shows the arrivals and departures of passengers at San Francisco to and from domestic Atlantic and foreign ports for a series of years:

	Arrived	Departed	Gain
1870	52,400	37,300	15,100
1871	42,000	31,700	10,300
1872	51,700	33,000	18,700
1873	70,200	35,400	34,800
1874	85,400	38,100	47,300
1875	108,700	43,200	65,500

The results of the large immigration to this State last year can hardly be overestimated. Apart from the Chinese, most of the persons arriving here have brought more or less ready money, just how much it is of course, difficult to determine. We happen to know of one instance where the party arriving brought $40,000 with him to invest or loan. There are probably numerous other instances where large sums of money have been added to the capital of the State through these new comers. At the same time many have arrived in comparatively destitute circumstances. It is probably safe to average the net arrivals, exclusive of Chinese, at $100 per head. This gives us over $5,000,000 of added capital in money through the immigration of last year. Those that came merely on a flying visit probably spent $50 apiece while here, which would make about $2,000,000 more. But who can calculate the wealth added to the coast by the united labor of the 65,000 who remain? Many of these have taken up lands to cultivate. Others have gone into the various trades and professions. Still others have engaged as laborers on public and private improvements, clerks, etc. Most of the 65,000 have come here to work, and nearly all have found it in some form or other. Their united energies for the year to come will add greatly to the material wealth of the State, and at the same time increase its consumptive wants. These 65,000 people must be fed, clothed and housed. Just think of it. There is a very good sized city in these 65,000 people. Some places in the Atlantic States have been years in gathering together such a population. Here that number has been thrust upon us in a single year. We do not wish to be understood as saying that San Francisco has made such a gain. The city gets the credit of it, but the increase has been distributed all over the State and some of it has overflowed into adjacent States and Territories. But San Francisco, after all, is the great source of supplies. The net gain to our population by immigration since 1858 has been as follows:

1858	Net gain	12,700	1867	Net gain	[illegible]
1859		13,400	1868		[illegible]
1860		[illegible]1,200	1869		24,[illegible]
1861		[illegible]	1870		15,100
1862		14,800	1871		10,300
1863		[illegible]	1872		18,700
1864		9,800	1873		34,800
1865	Loss 3,800		1874		47,300
1866		4,800	1875		65,500

Total	370,800
Deduct loss in 1865	3,800
Net gain for eighteen years	367,000

It is stated in a London paper that up to the present time only 400 persons in Great Britain have announced their intention to contribute to the Centennial Exhibition. The Queen has consented to send twenty of her pictures. The Royal Academy will allow each R. A. to send two pictures and each A. R. A. to send one.

SENATOR MORTON'S RESOLUTION

The discussion of the resolution of Senator Morton to investigate the Mississippi State election ought to throw much light upon the question of the right of the Federal Government to interfere in State elections It is based we presume, upon the authority of the Senate to judge of the election of its own members The question will be, whether that right includes the right to go behind the election by the State legislature, and inquire into the regularity of the election of the members of the legislature The power of the Senate has never, if we do not mistake, been pushed to that length The proposition is therefore a new one That it presents a very important question need not be stated. A decision in favor of the exercise of such a power would be far reaching in its consequences, placing all State elections in which legislators are chosen, under the immediate supervision of the Federal Government Senator Morton, in his speech upon the resolution, does not discuss the constitutional question involved, but gives his attention mainly to a rehearsal of the stories of outrage and violence in connection with the election and for some years anterior to it As a means of ascertaining the general condition and wants of society at the South, such an investigation as Senator Morton proposes, would certainly be within the constitutional powers of the Senate, though the policy of it, or its tendency to help matters any would be extremely questionable But the resolution itself, as heretofore telegraphed, does not place the investigation on that ground, but upon the assumption that a United States Senator elected by a legislature, some of the members of which were not lawfully elected is not a duly elected Senator and should not be admitted to a seat Though Mr Morton treats the matter, in his remarks, as if there were no such question of constitutional power involved, a vote will hardly be reached without a challenge to the investigation on that ground

The new doctrine looks plausible enough at the first blush but we cannot but think it is unsound in principle and that it would be dangerous in practice It is not the case of Mississippi alone, but of every State in the Union Spencer of Alabama occupies at this time a seat in the Senate to which he was chosen by a legislature strongly tainted with fraud Other Senators from Southern, and doubtless from Northern States, are in the same boat It was generally believed that several members of the Oregon legislature by which Senator Kelly was elected were not lawfully there If we recollect aright, a proceeding was had by which Multnomah county was deprived of her lawful representation in the State Senate So in 1872, when our junior Senator was chosen, there were members in the House who, it was generally supposed, had no lawful right to be there, except so far as they might be considered lawfully there because they were admitted by the House in the exercise of its constitutional right to judge of the election of its own members

And this leads to the suggestion of the question, what becomes of the right of the State Legislatures to judge for themselves of the election of their members, if there is another power above them which can overrule or reverse their decision? The constitutions of the States, declaring this right, have never been questioned by Congress The principle has been recognized as a fundamental fact in our system of government, State as well as Federal If the power claimed by this resolution exists, the State Legislatures possess no power to judge of the election of their own members, or else they may decide that question so far as relates to the matter of local legislation but not for the purpose of electing United States Senators If this is the law, the State may organize its Legislature for legislative purposes, but the Federal government may organize it for the purpose of electing Senators. Such a thing was never contemplated by the framers of the Federal constitution

THE MERCURY SHOWS ITS EARS

The Salem Mercury comes to us filled to overflowing with personal attacks upon the attorneys who tried the Court House case against Marion county and bristling with untruthful statements which we might consider it proper to answer were it not that, as we have stated before, we deem it out of taste, if not otherwise improper, to discuss through the newspapers matters that may affect the trial of cases pending in the courts of justice and especially cases in which we have appeared as counsel The OREGONIAN has never expressed, directly or indirectly, an opinion on the merits of the questions involved in those suits and does not propose to do so while they are in the courts It is the right, moral and legal of every person or municipal corporation to have his or its title to property tried in the courts and to have the trial proceed without the aid of newspaper or other extraneous pressure Rather than be the means of depriving any party of the full benefit of this right of fair trial, we choose to bear the unjust attacks of interested papers If they choose to take a course, which every candid mind must regard as flagrantly vicious they can do so We shall not reciprocate

The Mercury takes occasion to characterize the suits now past of the Lownsdale heirs in Portland as dishonorable [illegible] [illegible] suits are thus [illegible] because we were engaged for the heirs It is a sufficient answer that [illegible] that a large number of the suits went to trial—some at law and some in [illegible] were decided in favor of the heirs The courts of law and the courts of equity agreed that in equity and in law the suits were proper The Supreme Court of the State and of the United States so decided With such backing we care little for the malicious falsehoods of the Governor's penny whistle We cannot claim the honor of having won those suits alone, as we were associated in conducting them, with several of the most distinguished members of the bar but we cheerfully accept our full share of the responsibility

The Mercury takes occasion to remark that the OREGONIAN published the testimony in the Dan Smith mail robbery case but did not publish that in the Court House case. The mail robbery case was a criminal cause, which had been made the subject of general discussion throughout the State, and as such it was fully reported The Salem case was a civil action The value of the matter in controversy was not larger than in other civil cases that have been before our courts It was tried as civil cases are usually tried and, as in the case of more important civil suits was not reported That is the long and short of it We do not pretend to know whether the explanation will be satisfactory to the Mercury or not it will be so to people of sense

COMPARATIVE RAILWAY FREIGHTS

The Eastern press and merchants are indulging in objurgations loud and deep against the railway companies on account of a new freight circular just issued fixing the tariff between New York and Chicago They complain of the following scale of prices for carrying freight a distance of 900 miles, viz 1st class, per 100 lbs, 45 cents 2d class, 36 cents, 3d class, 31 cents

This would hardly be considered an intolerable grievance by the people of the Pacific coast, who pay on various roads rates considerably higher without grumbling How would the following rates paid by Pacific coast people, suit the people of the Atlantic side? From Portland to Eugene City, 124 miles by rail 1st class, per 100 lbs 75 cents, 2d class, 65 cents 3d class, 55 cents

By water and rail from Portland to Wallula, 240 miles, 1st class per 100 lbs, $1 25

By rail from Wallula to Walla Walla, 30 miles, 1st class per 100 lbs, 40 cents

By rail from San Francisco to Omaha 1,070 miles, 1st class per 100 lbs, $5 50, 2d class, $4 50, 3d class $3 50

In this connection we observe that Thomas H Goodman (what a misnomer) the general passenger agent of the Central Pacific has stated officially that the Central and Union Pacific companies will not reduce the fare to visitors going to the Centennial Exposition As these roads were built in great part by Government aid and as they are earning at least 20 per cent per annum net, on their cost one might have expected a concession such as is made by the roads in the Eastern States Of course the owners and managers of these roads are at Washington opposing "on principle," as the telegrams have informed us, all Government aid to other roads If another should get into California, it might spoil this nice little game of charging six times as much as the trunk lines in the East, and certainly double what would be a fair rate to earn legitimate dividends on their capital

Mr Martin, from the committee on public morals, has introduced in the California Legislature a long resolution, that means that trouble is in preparation for Representative Wilcox It seems that Mr Wilcox being incensed at M. Somers a newspaper reporter, on account of certain strictures on his conduct in the Legislature written by Somers made an assault upon him with a heavy cane immediately after the House adjourned and beat him pretty severely The assault was committed in a cowardly manner by Wilcox coming up behind Somers who was sitting at his desk writing, and striking him before Somers was aware of his presence It is likely that Mr Wilcox will find it hard to justify his action Even if the provocation was great the manner of the assault was unmanly Of course such proceedings are in no way commendable but this one seems to be exceptionally reprehensible and if the Legislature of California should deal severely with Mr Wilcox, he will find few sympathizers

The Duke of Cambridge in the course of a speech the other day said that the cost of the 81 ton gun would be $75 000, and every shot fired from it will cost $125 At this rate war is becoming a luxury which impecunious nations will find it difficult to indulge in

The Democrats of California are exhibiting their opposition to the caucus system by doing up the legislative business of the State in accordance with the behests of a secret caucus, which tells the Democratic members what their duties are

At Eton College the study of music has lately been made compulsory for all the boys in the fourth and higher classes In the public schools of England it has been taught from the beginning

THE MILLENNIUM

The Rev Dr Cumming delivered a sermon at the Scotch National church on New Year's Day in which he repeated his views, somewhat revised of the millennium The following comment is from the New York Herald

He warned his hearers to make ready for its advent The second coming of Christ on earth according to this prophet must happen before September 1876 Mr Moody was quoted as one of the authorities for this belief The Jews are to return to Judea this year The Turks are to disappear as a nation Altogether according to Dr Cumming, there are to be great doings in the world during the memorable year which is just begun

More faith would be naturally placed in Dr Cumming's predictions if they had not been already weighed in the balance and found wanting. It has been his business for the last quarter of a century to periodically announce the millennium and his fate to have his prophecies proved fallacies The millennium stubbornly refuses to come though called upon like the spirits in the vasty deep that Hotspur spoke of This is an ancient folly During the persecutions of the early Christians and before the foundation of the church in Rome the millennium was expected It was constantly impending during the Dark Ages Scores of pious calculators whose brains were muddled by long study of the signs in the Apocalypse and the mystical numbers on the forehead of the beast have predicted the acts of Heaven with more certainty than if they had been making the tables for next year's almanac It is the history of man's [illegible]

Your [illegible] predictions work great harm The Millerite excitement in America [illegible] lunatic asylums [illegible] New [illegible] Dr Cumming [illegible] Astronomer like Mr [illegible] that the earth [illegible] table for [illegible] Christians who are content to accept the things which is given to them by heaven and have not presumption enough to think they are a limited part of the councils of the Omniscient Dr Cumming can do little harm by this sort of foolish wicked prediction of the coming of the end of the world Here in America we have the Centennial and we ask all the world to come to us and see the result of a century of freedom The international exhibition will do more to hasten the true millennium than all the prophecies that have been made from the days of Joanna Southcott to those of the Rev Dr Cumming

CITY.

LARCENY OF A GUN.—A man named John Swift was arrested Tuesday afternoon on a warrant issued from the police court accusing him of stealing a shot gun on the forenoon of that day. Swift was lodged in jail and an examination of the case was had yesterday morning. From the evidence elicited during the progress of the investigation it seems that Swift, in company with a young man, started to come to this city from the country—some part of Washington county. The young man had a shot gun. When the twain had reached a point about three miles from Portland (they came by way of the Canyon road) the young man concluded that it was unnecessary to bring his gun all the way to the city, and he proposed to Swift that they should secrete the weapon somewhere in the woods so that on their return they could take it back. To this proposition Swift readily acceded and his companion taking the gun carried it several rods into the timber from the roadside and placing it by the side of a log, laid a piece of bark over it to protect the weapon from the rain. The two then continued their journey toward the city. When the suburbs were reached Swift and his companion separated with the understanding that they were to meet at some place mentioned in the city. They separated, the young man coming on to Portland, and Swift going his way. The young man remained here some time but failed to find Swift according to the agreement. He started home but on reaching the spot where he had hid the gun, judge of his surprise and chagrin to find that it was gone. A witness testified who lives about half a mile this side where the gun was secreted that he saw Swift and the young man pass his place together, that some time after he observed Swift going back alone, and soon heard the report of a gun up the road a considerable distance. From all the circumstances of the case the young man became convinced that Swift had stolen the gun, and he accordingly swore out a warrant and caused his arrest. Several witnesses were examined, and the court deeming the testimony conclusive as to Swift's guilt, found him guilty. At this juncture Mr Searle, the counsel for defense, arose and moved a dismissal of the case on the ground of want of jurisdiction. It was claimed that the alleged offense was committed three miles from the city and that according to a previous decision of the court in relation to a case somewhat similar the police judge had no jurisdiction in the matter. The motion in stay of judgment was sustained and the defendant released from custody.

WASH YOUR HORSES LEGS.—Some days since a gentleman who resides a few miles from the city had occasion to drive a valuable and highly prized horse a considerable distance through the mud and rain. On reaching home, at quite a late hour in the evening, the gentleman put the animal in the stable without observing the precaution to wash the mud off the horse's legs. Next morning he turned the animal loose in the pasture. In a few days the horse became lame, its legs swelled up and broke out with sores, from the effects of which it has not yet recovered. The gentleman was at a loss to account for the sudden condition of the animal's limbs and applied to a person conversant with the diseases of horses, for information. On laying the case before him, the man stated that it was the direct result of leaving the mud on the horse's legs, and permitting it to dry there; that if he had taken the trouble to wash the dirt off, the animal would have shown no such symptoms. This was a piece of information to the gentleman who himself professes to have some knowledge of "horseology." [illegible] no doubt many persons who drive and ride horses that are ignorant of the fact that [illegible] mud to dry on the legs of the animal will in many instances produce a disease commonly known as the "scratches," which causes the pastern joints to swell, become stiff and sore, and the skin to ulcerate. The mud, when it dries, causes a fevered condition of the limbs, and results as above mentioned. A little precaution observed in keeping the limbs clean will save much subsequent [illegible] to owners and needless suffering to the animal.

THE SOCIABLE.—One of the most pleasant affairs of the season was the sociable given last evening at the Unitarian church, under the auspices of the ladies connected with the congregation. A large number were in attendance, and a most enjoyable time was experienced. Early in the evening, a programme of varied exercises was presented and received with hearty applause by the large audience. Mr. Atwater, Mr Martin Winch and Mrs Elliot, read the following pieces, respectively: "The Alchemist," "The Letter of Death" and "Our Boys." The former gentleman has not read before in public and his reading produced a marked impression. Instrumental music was presented by Misses Helen Teal and Carrie Barnhart, and duets by Lola Dalton, Lena Morgan and Charlie and Amy Estes. The Amphion club with two fine selections, the choir of the church, and Mrs DePrans and Mr Franklin in vocal pieces, all contributed largely to the excellence of the programme. The assemblage to a late hour was engaged in social converse, partaking of refreshments, etc. We hear that an entertainment of similar character will be given monthly in the church.

EAST PORTLAND LITERARY CLUB.—This club was organized last Saturday evening by electing F. H. Manning chairman and Claude Thayer secretary. After a short and lively discussion upon the merits of various questions to be offered for debate at the next meeting, the following, presented by Hon J. S. M. Vancleve, was adopted: Resolved, That a general amnesty should be granted by the government, removing all political disabilities from those who participated in the late rebellion. The leading disputants are: T. R. Turnbull, affirmative, L. N. Sanders, negative. Free [illegible]; everybody invited to attend and take part in the debate, which will be held at the council chamber on Saturday evening, Jan 22d, at 7 o'clock, and every Saturday evening thereafter during the winter. The [illegible] are especially invited.

A "MILL."—Two men were observed yesterday evening in front of the Howard saloon near the corner of First and D streets, engaged in the innocent and highly edifying pastime of disfiguring each other's countenance. One of the combatants was a rather elderly man and the other a young fellow. But youth, with its activity and endurance, failed to win the victory. After two or three spiritedly contested "rounds," the younger [illegible] concluded that he had got the most of the fight, and hauled off for repairs. Both parties seemed perfectly willing to play quits, and so the matter ended. Fortunately for the combatants the keen optics of the guardian of peace failed to catch sight of the "mill," and thus the disturbers escaped occupying a cell last night.

DROWNED.—A letter dated Dayton, Cal., January 10th, has been received, from which we learn that Frank A. Russell, son in law of James McKay, and formerly a resident of Washington county, Oregon, was drowned in Butte county, Cal., while attempting to cross a stream of water. No one was with him but he was seen at the distance of a half mile by a man who says he entered the water on horseback. The horse soon after emerged on the opposite bank riderless. Aid was immediately summoned, but all was too late, for the body could not be seen, and was not found for 36 hours afterward. His wife will return to her father's home in Washington county. He leaves a wife and one child six weeks old.

REVIVAL MEETING.—Last night the basement of the Taylor street M. E. church was filled with an audience which seemed deeply interested in the exercises of the evening, as indicated by the large number of persons who came forward to the altar desiring a reform and a better life, and also by those who stood up and desired prayers. The interest increases as the week draws to a close. To night the meeting will be repeated and all are invited to be present. Christians are desired to lend a helping hand to any who turn from evil and try to do right. A meeting will also be held to-morrow evening. We are not advised whether a meeting will be held Saturday night, but none will probably occur.

SOCIAL ENTERTAINMENT.—The ladies of the Presbyterian congregation invite their friends and the public to visit them to morrow evening in the basement rooms of the church. Please remember time, place and occasion.

HELD TO ANSWER.—Four sailors belonging to the Abercorne named respectively Edward Kennedy, James Kent, Frederick Christensen and August Johnsen were examined Tuesday evening before U S Commissioner Wilcox on complaint of the master of the vessel. These sailors are accused of neglecting and refusing to obey the orders of the officers. Deeming the evidence conclusive the commissioner held the defendants to answer the charge and in default of bonds were committed to jail.

OUT OF ORDER.—Yesterday noon an alarm was struck from Box No. [illegible] in order to test the lines and determine whether or not the apparatus was in working condition. An examination showed that the striking apparatus connected with the big bell was out of order owing to the machinery being rusty. The striking rod had caused the bright work to corrode and prevented the right signals from being given. The apparatus is being cleaned and will be put in serviceable condition at once.

CHINESE NEW YEAR.—According to the rites and customs of the inhabitants of the Flowery Land next Tuesday will be the Chinese New Year. Extensive preparations are being made and the event will be observed in the usual manner—by the firing of festive crackers and the bang of the cheerful bomb. If the ridiculous observance of the New Year were half as annoying to the disciples of Joss as to their American friends it would have been voted a nuisance long since and banished from the land.

AT THE LIBRARY.—The smoking and chess room attached to the library will be ready for occupancy about Monday next. As at present arranged the library rooms are far more comfortable than before. Mr Oxer the librarian is much annoyed to find the newspaper files mutilated and is on the watch for those who thus destroy the papers. If caught they will be severely punished. The membership is growing and many additions in books and papers have been made recently.

PREPARING FOR THE COMING SEASON.—LaChapelle the boat builder will begin next week preparatory for the coming season by fitting up his fleet of row boats in order to have them in time for the increased demand. The new yachts Oregonian and Julia Milliken will be fitted out in grand style and new boats will be added to the large fleet at present laid up at the boat house. Mr LaChapelle is looking forward to a grand regatta on the Centennial day.

THE GYMNASIUM.—On Tuesday and Friday evenings the Turners gymnasium is largely attended by those interested in developing the muscle. On Tuesday evening a class of about twenty boys were put through the various exercises, after which they were allowed to enjoy themselves as they pleased. The class of adults is quite large, among whom are several prominent gentlemen. The institution is an excellent place for young men of sedentary habits.

LEG CRUSHED.—A man named Chas. Rohr, carpenter, at work on Megler's cannery, Brookfield, had his leg crushed by the falling upon it of a large stringer ten inches thick. An open boat arrived from Megler's this evening for surgical aid. Had it not been for a hole in the floor, through which all of Rohr's body fell except the unfortunate leg he would have been inevitably crushed to death instantly.

TAXES—TAXABLE PROPERTY.—As shown by the assessment roll returned by the city assessor of East Portland the total amount of taxable property is estimated at $1 030 000. At the last meeting of the board of trustees of that city the rate of taxation was fixed at 2½ mills on the dollar to defray the current expenses of running the municipal government.

REPAIRS TO THE AJAX.—Tuesday afternoon the coffer dam under the stern of the Ajax having been pumped out, a coal fire was built around the eye of the propeller and the metal heated to redness. With no small difficulty the propeller was removed from the shaft and the necessary repairs will be made at once.

Miss Gussie Miller was tendered a surprise party Tuesday evening by a number of her friends. A very agreeable time was experienced.

ALASKA NEWS

The following Alaskan matters are collected from the Herald, of Jan. 5th:

A little stir just now is created by a projected marriage in Sitka—the first one since about three years.

The wharf at Sitka is now so far repaired that the steamer can make fast to it and no longer needs to drop anchor way off shore.

Since last month this has been a three company garrison, but it should be mentioned that the three together would in point of numbers scarcely be considered one respectable sized company.

The main pastime now and for some five months to come is skating, and that is indulged in by old and young at all hours of the day and night. The Indians slide along the glassy surface barefooted, and if they feel cold they stoutly deny the fact.

There are now about fifty miners from Cassiar wintering at Sitka so as to make an early return—starting up the river next February or March. At least four times that number would have come to this place to winter were it not for the many irksome restrictions by the military authority.

As soon as spring opens a party from here will ascend the Chilcat river to thoroughly prospect that section of country. Should gold in paying quantities be found it would establish the fact that the gold placer region from Idaho extends through British Columbia into Alaska, perhaps to the Yukon river. The discovered quartz ledges near Sitka at present lie buried deep under snow and in apparent oblivion. No progress has yet been made in the negotiations for enlisting capital to develop them. Will they ever be tested? If they assay as well as reported the trial ought to be made.

SCIENTIFIC LECTURES.—The subjects of the scientific lectures that Dr. Harvey has been requested to deliver will be, on the evolution of the earth, the evolution of life, the glacial epoch, the correlation of the forces, the heavenly bodies and dietetics and hygiene. The series on evolution will go to show that the universe and man are controlled by law and not by caprice or variable will; that everything flows in a regular train of cause and effect, and that a perfect knowledge of the laws of nature would enable the possessor of it to determine events before they came to pass, though it is not supposed that any man can possess this knowledge. A rational discussion of these topics we should think could hardly fail to be interesting, and we have no doubt there will be a large turn out to hear the lectures. The first on the Evolution of the Earth will take place on Friday evening next, the 21st instant. Tickets to be had at J. K. Gill's book store. Admission 25 cents.

A MISERABLE LIFE IS LED BY THE DYSPEPTIC, for his complaint not only prostrates the body but produces a gloomy state of mind and an irritable disposition. While many articles are recommended as curatives of this disease none have met with the success which has attended the use of Dr Jayne's Alterative in conjunction with Jayne's Sanative Pills. The Alterative purifies the blood, gives strength to the digestive organs and imparts a healthy tone to the system; the Sanative Pills change the vitiated secretions of the stomach and liver and stimulate these organs to healthy action. By the combined action of these remedies many radical cures have been effected, and they are therefore confidently offered to the afflicted.

Pranks of a Disordered Liver.

A disordered liver plays sad pranks with the digestive organs, the bowels, the kidneys and the blood, and inflicts an infinite variety of unpleasant symptoms upon its unfortunate possessor. Among which may be mentioned yellowness of the skin and whites of the eyes, furred tongue, nausea, headache, vertigo, pain in the head, side and stomach, drowsiness by day and unrest by night, difficult evacuation and even irritation of the bladder and urethra. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters discipline the rebellious organ, and obviate bilious manifestations more rapidly and certainly than anything else, and are far more agreeable and infinitely wholesomer than the violent evacuants with which the bilious often persecute their unfortunate bowels and stomach, under the mistaken impression that they are regulating their livers.

A Friend in Need. Dr. WISTAR'S BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY is a friend in deed. PLUMMER FRUIT DRYER.

AS A PROOF OF WHAT I HAVE HERETOFORE stated to the people of Oregon, I give below a letter from the Plummer Fruit Drying Co. of East Portland. After the close of business of 187[illegible] fully endorsing it after using it one entire season; and as a proof to substantiate what they say, they now contemplate putting up another Dryer of the same capacity of the one they now have, which will increase their capacity to five hundred bushels of apples per day. Having now located here for the purpose of supplying the demand for Fruit Dryers in Oregon and Washington Territory I can supply these dryers at a cost of from $[illegible] to $1 000 according to capacity. Warranted to dry from 8 to 16 bushels of apples per hour at a small cost for labor and fuel. These machines being simple in construction they cannot fail to supersede all other known machines. I would also say to the fruit growers that I have invented a Machine (and am now waiting for a patent) that will [illegible] spread the fruit on the trays with a very small amount of labor. I also have invented a Peach Parer that is an entirely new principle, [illegible] it as well as [illegible] [illegible] with great speed and slices and pits the fruit ready for the Dryer in the best possible manner and at a great saving in quantity of fruit.

FRUIT DRYER TESTIMONIALS.

EAST PORTLAND Jan 4th, 1876.
Mr W. S. PLUMMER—Dear Sir: As this is a time when all are much interested in Fruit Drying we think that in justice to you and for the information of the public it is but right and proper that we should give all the information that we can. Now after having operated your Dryer during this season we feel warranted in saying that for [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] still believe as we did in the first that your Dryer is the best Dryer yet in use in this country. The capacity of the Dryer we find to be about 8 (eight) bushels per hour. The Dried fruit we claim to be as good as any, though perhaps not as much bleached as the Alden Fruit, and we are satisfied that we can produce Dried Fruit at less expense than the Alden. [illegible] stockholders of our Company manifested their confidence in the Plummer Dryer at our meeting [illegible] by a unanimous vote to increase the capital stock $1[illegible] twelve thousand dollars for the purpose of adding one more Dryer to the [illegible] [illegible] improvement [illegible] [illegible] We will further say that we [illegible] [illegible] improvement made by the patent [illegible] [illegible] there will be an [illegible] also [illegible] saving of fuel.

SALMON AND ONE WAY OF PRESERVING THEM

[illegible] apparatus for preserving [illegible] particularly fish has been [illegible] in the United States [illegible] especially in New York. Briefly [illegible] freezer is a large double chamber [illegible] between [illegible] There is [illegible] freezer where the ice is in [illegible] of metal columns into the [illegible] To place fish or anything to [illegible] immediate contact with the [illegible] has [illegible] abandoned long ago. Besides being [illegible] through waste of ice [illegible] alimentary substances are kept from decomposition the essential juices and [illegible] of fish, game or meat are dissolved out [illegible] There can be no doubt that starting from the household ice chest and ending [illegible] Allegretti refrigerator we have arrived [illegible] great degree of excellence [illegible] depending upon a [illegible] and mechanical [illegible] expected which will [illegible] present advantages over older processes.

[illegible] keeping fish is to be [illegible] the coagulation of albumen in a [illegible] that [illegible] nothing is be[illegible] fish or meat below [illegible] certain [illegible] though perhaps not so fully [illegible] well defined. Possibly [illegible] disintegrated [illegible] differences in taste and flavor [illegible] preservation [illegible] kept at an even temper[illegible] higher or lower [illegible] will not be placed in a lower temperature a portion of the natural [illegible] exudes to the surface, and the fish becomes less rich. The reason for this we do not think difficult of solution. As the fish gets hard and possibly contracts, the fat is pressed out. As salmon are very beautiful objects in themselves the conservative element goes even further. The salmon are not only wanted sweet and sound but they must retain their good looks. A very ingenious method has been resorted to by Mr Piper of St John, by which the salmon is kept perfect. We suppose the secret consists in dipping the salmon as soon as it is caught in a thin solution of gelatine, which, acting as a varnish on a picture, keeps every scale in exact position, and prevents any accidental abrasion of the salmon's coat of mail when he is refrigerated. The refrigeration of fish is carried on to a large extent in New York with all kinds of summer fish, so that blue fish, Spanish mackerel, pompano, fresh mackerel and sheepshead are preserved [illegible] form during the winter.

The demand for fresh salmon in New York is constant and we consume and distribute about 265 000 pounds [illegible] year. This large quantity is mainly supplied by three [illegible] dealers—Messrs Brown & Seals [illegible] Mr Piper of Bathurst and St Johns [illegible] Mr Croker of Derby on the Miramichi [illegible] alone, during the summer uses some [illegible] pounds of salmon, the Grand Union hotel running up a daily bill at one time of $267 [illegible] of which fresh salmon is the most important item. About eight thousand dollars for the season is what a first class hotel at Saratoga will expend on fish. A large hotel like the Windsor in this city, will buy regularly $1 000 per month, the consumption being greatest for salmon and the higher grades of fish.

From the best information 124 000 of salmon come to New York from New Brunswick and 80 000 from Nova Scotia, Canada and other sources. The Penobscot fish rarely find their way to New York, Boston taking them all. Prices vary in New York from twenty-five cents to seventy-five cents a pound, the fish being cheapest about the 4th of July. Salmon are shipped from the provinces in boxes, containing fourteen fish, and are iced three times in transit. Mr Piper refrigerates his fish at New Brunswick; other dealers forward their fish to New York during the summer, where they are bought by the leading dealers and put away in the freezers for winter consumption. The Miramichi, from whence of late the bulk of salmon are coming, is a river of New Brunswick, emptying into the bay of Chaleurs (called, perhaps a warm bay because it is a very cold one), and having innumerable branches, designated as the north west and south west branches. About the 20th of May the salmon commence running but are not caught in quantity, the fishing really beginning toward the close of the month or early in June continuing on until the 15th of August; the runs of salmon are sometimes apparently fortnightly but are often continuous. The May run of fish is smaller in weight of individual fish than those ascending the river in June. In July the fish become darker, and in August the color of the back is dusky, the salmon having the peculiar spots on the head being well developed.

No fish is more curious than the salmon as to his protean appearance as he passes through his various stages of existence as the parr, the smolt, the adult fish and the kelt. Not a great many years ago different species were made out of the same kind of fish. It is indeed probable that on the Pacific coast where innumerable varieties have been signaled in [illegible] the present confusion there may be wonderfully simplified. When the adult vigorous salmon who has been in the sea not far perhaps from the mouth of the river where he was born, seen in the stream [illegible] kind his handsome head and well rounded body, the perfect symmetry of fish form changes; on his head an ugly hook is formed, descending from his upper jaw, which works a depression into the lower jaw. He is no longer handsome but ugly. Perhaps nature has designed it so that this blunting of his nose and hiding of his teeth may prevent the fish from exercising certain ferocious instincts belonging more or less to all the salmonidæ which might do harm to others of his species during the spawning season. It may be that this peculiarity of head is a forced physical deformity, caused by the fish striking against obstacles in his way, as he leaps and struggles ever onward up the rapid stream, led by a blind instinct which makes him ascend to the [illegible] seeking some dark pool where years before he first swam as a fingerling in the quiet waters.

This year has been an exceptionally poor one for salmon, while last year was a famous one as many as 150 000 fish of ten pounds each having been caught in Nova Scotia in 1874. Fishermen in the Miramichi are generally able to count with a good deal of certainty on the probable results of fishing in a coming year, and Mr Croker, of the Miramichi informs us that from the large run of young salmon, the smolts of this year when they come back in 1876, the catch will be a [illegible] For those fond of salmon or [illegible] to extra fishing during the [illegible] this may be most cheering news [illegible] height of the season on the Miramichi as many as 1000 fine salmon have been landed [illegible] single day and one party of fishermen have secured in their nets 900 good fish, for which [illegible] cents to $1 per fish has been paid. When the inquiry was made as to whether salmon were scarcer now than in former years [illegible] answer was given that taking the average of years the quantity of the catch seems [illegible] This good result is [illegible] due to the great care taken by Messrs Whitcher and Wilmot, the Canadian Fish Commissioners. The cry so frequently heard of the scarcity of certain kinds of fish may [illegible] relatively [illegible] The fact is often overlooked that, while the stock of fish remains about constant the number of people wanting to eat them is always on the increase. If then at present fish commissioners are only able to keep up the supply at its normal [illegible] achieving wonders [illegible] with simple conservation [illegible] practical and scientific [illegible] the [illegible] labors will be worthy of the highest [illegible]

[illegible] New Brunswick [illegible] business of canning salmon but the [illegible] has almost killed the [illegible] may indeed be called [illegible] a single [illegible] Mr [illegible] The [illegible] of this [illegible] 1,000 [illegible] canned salmon each box containing [illegible] of 2 pound cans of [illegible] market a total of [illegible] tons [illegible] salmon. There is an often repeated story which later research has [illegible] about [illegible] approaches [illegible] Perhaps on the Oregon rivers [illegible] Chinese workmen mostly employed [illegible] the fish may in [illegible] who requested to eat salmon [illegible]

The same feeling of quietness noticed from time to time since the new year still prevails in our local money market. Those who [illegible] choice [illegible] our [illegible] is freely taken up both at the banks and by [illegible] at the [illegible] terms. There is a slightly increased [illegible] grain movement [illegible] in a limited [illegible] supplied from sources outside the State. The [illegible] with which the surplus breadstuffs [illegible] State has moved during the season [illegible] benefited other branches of trade and [illegible] of capital [illegible] in [illegible] of wheat [illegible] doubt that [illegible] of hard times would soon cease and an era of commercial activity and prosperity would [illegible] in if the market for this and the other [illegible] State should [illegible] which furnish the demand for these products is likely to occur before another crop is gathered is a question to which there seems to be two sides each having some strong reasons in the present indications from abroad. We have hoped all along that the English markets for our wheat would take a sharp turn upward before the close of the season but the hope or the realization of it seems to be long deferred. Latest advices denote but little improvement in the prospects.

The Breadstuffs Markets.

Since our last report there has been but little change in the situation or prices. The prevailing feature in the flour market has been a general dullness in the demand for export. The same condition too is noticed in most all the commercial centers, and the dullness is perhaps not more apparent here than elsewhere. As a rule, the stocks now held at all the primary markets are large and sales slow. A circular from a leading mill company in the West on this subject, says:

Looking over the field carefully we are therefore inclined to the opinion that the future [illegible] [illegible] of good than has been had for several months past and we have no hesitation in expressing the belief that the remainder of the crop of 1875 will be placed at prices more remunerative to both producer and manufacturer than have yet been seen. We are aware that the surface indications do not [illegible] fully in this view but we are willing to give the facts and leave it to the future to support our judgment.

A general review of the wheat trade of the United States made at New York at the close of the year treats of the subject of the anticipated advance in the cereal at length and conclusions are drawn that are not entirely favorable to holders. Prices at the beginning of this year were about 10 per cent higher than at the incoming of 1875, though the visible supply was fully 18 000 000 bushels against 13 000 000 in 1875. The basis of the speculation for a rise rests mainly upon the partial failure of the crops in Russia and California, and the injury that was done by excessive rain during the progress of the harvest in England, France and the Ohio valley of the United States. The probability of hostilities breaking out between some of the great powers of Europe has also been an element in the speculation for a rise. But for some time past the course of prices has been slightly downward. Reports of "short crops" prove as usual to have been more or less exaggerated. England is receiving large supplies and her markets are reported depressed. The position of affairs on the continent is much more favorable to cheap bread. Advices from Berlin state that large quantities of wheat from Russia had been received at that market by rail. Exports from New York and other Atlantic ports have been checked by the scarcity and high rates of ocean freights and to add to the later discouragements of holders gold has been declining and much of the wheat on hand is found to be in condition to expose it to danger of heating when accumulated in large quantities in store. The drop of Australia wheat to come upon the Liverpool market next summer is said to be far in excess of former years. It is apparent therefore, that the work of reducing our stocks on hand cannot be long delayed and holders will be fortunate if they can do without submitting to any important decline.

LAND FOR IMMIGRANTS.

Choice Farms for Sale.

4,000 ACRES, IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT PURCHASERS.

230 ACRES DUE SOUTH AND ADJOINING the Railroad Depot at Salem all under cultivation and suitable for grain or vegetables

946 ACRES four miles southeast of Salem, on the railroad with Mill creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county with fine springs consisting in part of the old Rector donation claim on which I raised the present year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety four bushels per acre grain weighed and ground chained by Mr Alfred Stanton of Salem.

2,700 ACRES of prairie and light brush land with timber for farming purposes bounded by the Willamette river for four miles, beautiful lake on the east, boat landings all along the river commencing [illegible] miles north of Salem—all choice grain land—the largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $15 to $[illegible] per acre. This land will all be immediately surveyed and can be sold in larger or smaller parcels to suit purchasers. It can be subdivided to the best possible advantage, and I can offer any person or persons, or colony of persons desiring to purchase homes in the best part of the Willamette valley near the city of Salem and within reach of the best social advantages as well as most favorably located with respect to markets greater advantages on more favorable terms than they ever expect to realize again.
